Working for a brighter future  together

1. Introduction

In the other documents in this series, we have covered planning for bereavement and bereavement support for parents and carers.

This booklet looks at activities, which could be carried out with children in the event of a bereavement (some of which could also be carried out by adults), useful websites for further information, and books to use with children following bereavement.

The Critical Incidents team would welcome feedback from you on these resources and sources of support to inform the advice we give to others. We would also welcome any further suggestions of activities and things you have used/done which you feel have been beneficial so that we can include those.

Please remember the Mental Health helpline, which is also there to help adults and children at this challenging time:

Mental Health Helpline - 0300 303 3972 for residents of Cheshire East: It is open 24 hours a day, seven-days a week for people of all ages including children and young people who need urgent mental health support.

For non-urgent help and general wellbeing advice, the CWP website contains information and links to resources to support people with anxiety, low mood, and worries relating to the current Covid-19 pandemic.

For children and young people there is also a dedicated website: MyMind

2. Practical activities to do with children following bereavement

Memory box

A memory box holds special objects to help the child/children remember someone; reminding them of happy times they spent together. It could include something that they wore e.g. a watch, a hat, their glasses, a photo etc. anything which reminds them of that person. The box can be any container e.g. a shoe box with a lid. The child could decorate it. It may be helpful to put in a note to say why each object is special.

Memory Pictures

The child/children could draw or paint a picture, or make a collage, featuring things that the person who died loved, for example their favourite flower, colour, foods, or places.

Bubble Messages

The child/children can blow bubbles and, as they float away, they can watch them silently and think of the person who has died, or they can imagine they can take a happy message to the person who has died and can think of what they want to say. It could be saying something they liked about the person or something they did with them.

Memory Jar

People write happy memories of someone who has died on small slips of paper. These are then placed in a specially decorated jar. The memories can be of funny things the person did/said, or things they liked about the person, or things they did with them etc. The children might want to have the messages read out at some point, or they could read them out loud as they put them in the jar; alternatively, they may not want to share what has been written.

Write something 	Write the person who has died a letter, a card, a poem or a song. You could give the child/children a sentence start e.g. 'If you came back for just 5 minutes, I'd tell you...' Ask other people to write down their memories of the person; keep these in a special book.
Candles 	Light a candle in memory of the person and as it burns let everyone think of their happy memories of the person/think of positive things they would like to say to the person. These can be said silently or out loud.
Sand Jar 	Use different colours of sand (or salt with pastels/chalk rubbed into it) and layer it into a jar. Each colour represents something about the person who has died; it could be about their personality or a shared memory/experience. It may be helpful to attach a note or sticker to the jar to say what each colour symbolises.
Photographic memories 	Print the child/children's favourite photos of the person. The child could place them in a clip frame to display them or make a photobook. Or put them into a wooden frame and write/paint messages onto the frame.
Memory Rocks 	Three rocks: one jagged, one smooth, one special – each for memories of the person who has died. The jagged rock is hard to hold; it represents the difficult/painful memories. The smooth pebble represents normal every day events e.g. watching TV, going to school. The gemstone represents special memories e.g. a holiday, something they used to say. Keep them together; when touching them, recall the different memories.

4. Books on bereavement for children

Badger's Parting Gifts 	Susan Varley Age 3+	This moving story sees the process of the animals' grief after their friend, Badger, dies.
No Matter What 	Debi Giliori Age 3+	When children feel anxiety about losing a parent, often their fears focus on their worry that their parent no longer loves them. The characters in this book ask and answer these questions and prove that a parent has an endless capacity for love, even after death, and that their child is always loved, no matter what.
Where do they go? 	Julia Alvarez Age 3+	"When somebody dies, where do they go? / Do they go where the wind goes when it blows? ... Do they wink back at me when I wish on a star? Do they whisper, 'You're perfect, just as you are?'"
Grandad's Island 	Benji Davies Age 3+	Syd and his grandad go on an adventure in his grandad's attic. The next time Syd goes there his grandad is no longer there. A book that shows how those who are dear to us remain near to us – however far away they may seem.
Always and Forever 	Alan Durant Age 3+	When Fox dies, everyone is upset. His friends don't know how they'll go on without him. Months later Squirrel reminds them all of how funny Fox used to be. They realise that Fox will never truly be gone as he is still there in their hearts and memories. This book shows that, though loved ones may die, we can always remember the happy times we had with them.

Where's Jess? 	Marvin Johnson Age 3+	A young child experiences a variety of feelings after the death of a sibling.
When my daddy died 	K.J. Reider Age 4+	This book was written by a man who lost his best friend- his father, when he was just a young boy. In it, he talks about the memories he will always cherish about the time he had with his father.
The Day the Sea Went Out and Never Came Back 	Margot Sunderland Age 4+	Eric is a sand dragon who loves the sea. One day, the sea goes out and doesn't come back. He feels as if he has lost everything. After many days, Eric sees a little wild flower. It is dying. He finds water. More and more flowers appear and make a rock pool garden. He finds the courage to feel the full pain of his loss, instead of closing his heart.
The Memory Box 	Joanna Rowland Age 4+	In The Memory Box, a little girl worries she might forget someone in her life that recently died. She puts together a "memory box" with special relics and memories to remind her of "everywhere we've been, everywhere you've been, everywhere we wanted to go."
What Happens when we Die? 	Carolyn Nystrom Age 4+	The thought of dying can make any child sad and scared. Will it hurt? Does God want me to die? Where is heaven? Will Mom and Dad be there? How do I get there if I'm buried in the ground? In this simple yet profound book, your children will see for themselves the reasons people die...and what God has in store for them in heaven.

I'll always love you 	Hans Wilhelm Ages 4+	"In this gentle, moving story, Elfie, a dachshund, and her special boy progress happily through life together. One morning Elfie does not wake up. The family grieves and buries her. The watercolour illustrations, tender and warm in colour and mood, suit the simple text perfectly."
Goodbye Mog 	Judith Kerr Age 5+	Say goodbye to Mog in this incredibly moving story from Judith Kerr,
Michael Rosen's Sad Book 	Michael Rosen Age 5+	Michael Rosen reflects on the sadness he experienced when his 18-year-old son Eddie died. He offers uplifting insights to help young readers deal with complicated and difficult emotions, and shows children that it's okay to be sad.
I Miss You: A First Look at Death 	Pat Thomas Age 5+	This picture book explores the issue of death in a simple way, explaining the feelings children will experience and answering the questions they may have about this sensitive subject.
Muddles, Puddles and Sunshine 	Winston's Wish Age 5+	It shows children how they can find a balance between remembering their loved one and having fun.

You Are the Best Medicine 	By Julie Aigner Clark, Age 5+	A story about a mother with breast cancer and how her child makes her smile? "A cuddle, a story, a kiss—and thoughts of you. Because you are the best medicine."
Stones for Grandpa 	By Renee Londner Age 5+	A little boy and his family gather at the cemetery for the unveiling of his grandpa's gravestone, bringing stones to place on the grave, as is the Jewish tradition. They tell stories that help the boy deal with his loss, reminding him of the wonderful memories he has of his grandpa.
When Dinosaurs Die 	By Laura Krasny Brown Age 5+	The author explains in simple language the feelings people may have regarding the death of a loved one and the ways to honour the memory of someone who has died.
The Tenth Good Thing About Barney 	By Judith Viorst, Age 5+	"My cat Barney died this Friday. I was very sad. My mother said we could have a funeral for him, and I should think of ten good things about Barney so I could tell them"... But the small boy who loved Barney can only think of nine. Later, while talking with his father, he discovers the tenth — and begins to understand.
The Scar 	Charlotte Moundlic Age 5+	A little boy wakes up to find that his mother has died, he is overwhelmed with sadness, anger and fear that he will forget her. With the help of his Grandma he finds a way to hold on to his mother's love.

Granpa 	John Burningham Age 5+	Granpa nurses his granddaughter's dolls, mistakes her strawberry-flavoured pretend ice-cream for chocolate, takes her tobogganing in the snow, and falls in with her imaginary plans to captain a ship to Africa, like all good Granpa's should. It is a friendship that children who read this book will long remember.
Fred 	Posy Simmonds Age 5+	Fred's owners, Sophie and Nick, think he is the laziest cat in the world, but who knows what goes on after dark? It's only after their beloved pet dies, that they discover he has been leading an exciting double life...
Feather Pillows 	Rose Impey and Corfield Age 5+	Grandma Dora has recently died. Sarah can't stop thinking about Grandma Dora. Sarah feels so sad but at the same time all her memories are happy ones. Sarah finds a feather and she remembers one wonderful day when she, her Mum and her Grandma stuff pillows with feathers from an old mattress. She finds herself laughing and crying and begins to understand that you can feel happy and sad at the same time.
Lifetimes 	Bryan Mellonie Age 5+	A pet . . . a friend . . . or a relative dies, and it must be explained to a child. This book is a useful tool in explaining to children that death is a part of life and that, eventually, all living things reach the end of their own special lifetimes.
Remember the secret 	Elisabeth Kubler-Ross Age 5+	After seeing a vision of the afterlife with her guardian angel, Suzy is able to accept and understand the death of a friend.
When uncle Bob died 	Althea Age 5+	When someone special dies a child may need to talk about them and share their feelings of confusion and sadness. When Uncle Bob Died offers a starting point for discussing death and their own thoughts about it.

The Heart and the Bottle 	Oliver Jeffers Age 6+	A little girl shuts her heart away in a bottle for safety after the loss of someone close. But after that it seemed that the world was emptier than before.

When Jesse is away one day, tragedy strikes: Leslie drowns in the river after the rope breaks. This book explores how Jesse copes with this tragic and sudden bereavement.
When someone very special dies 	Marge Heegaard Age 9+	A practical format for allowing children to understand the concept of death and develop coping skills for life, this book is designed for young readers to illustrate.
Beat the Turtle Drum 	Constance C. Greene Age 9+	Thirteen-year-old Kate is thrilled for her sister, Joss, when Joss finds out she gets to keep a horse for a week as a birthday present. Then in one tragic moment, all of the happiness is gone, and numbness and grief overwhelm the family. Kate cannot imagine how she'll survive but knows somehow she must come to terms with her loss. Kate strives to find a place where joyful memories and painful loss can coexist.
The lost boys appreciation society 	Alan Gibbons Age 9+	Gary, John and Dad, are lost without Mum. Gary is only 14 and goes seriously off the rails, getting involved with local thugs and teetering on the brink of being on the wrong side of the law. John is wrestling with GCSEs and his first romance. They're all living with the memories of someone they can never replace.

Goodnight Mister Tom 	Michelle Magorian Age 10+	Willie Beech is a deprived child who lives in London with his abusive mother. When war breaks out he is evacuated into the home of Tom Oakley, an old man who turns out to be kind and loving. This book features a series of bereavements: the death of Willie's baby sister, his mother's suicide and the death of his friend, Zach. However, it ends with Willie's realisation that Zach will always be alive in his mind and memories.
My Sister Lives on the Mantelpiece 	Annabel Pitcher Age 10+	Five years ago, 10-year-old Jamie's older sister, Rose, was killed in a terrorist attack. The family is falling apart, and Jamie's mother walked out a few months ago. When he sees a TV advert for a talent show, he's certain this could change everything and maybe even bring the family back together again. This story explores the pain and grief a family can suffer following bereavement.
Two Weeks with the Queen 	Morris Gleitzman Age 10+	Colin is on a quest. His brother Luke has cancer and the doctors in Australia don't seem to be able to cure him. Sent to London to stay with relatives, Colin is desperate to do something to help Luke. He wants to find the best the doctor in the world. Where better to start than by going to the top? Colin is determined to ask the Queen for her advice. This very moving story illuminates deeply serious issues about illness and loss with bright moments of humour.
What on Earth Do You Do When Someone Dies? 	Trevor Romain, Age 11+	A factual guide, answering questions such as 'why do people have to die?', 'is it okay to cry?' and 'what is a funeral/memorial service?' It is written in a straightforward way, with practical tips, advice and information about different faiths and beliefs. It describes the strong, confusing feelings you might have and suggests ways to feel better.

A Monster Calls 	Patrick Ness Age 12+	A monster visits 13-year-old Conor O'Malley each night at 12.07am. The monster offers to tell Conor three stories - if Conor will tell his own story afterwards. We learn that Conor's mother is dying of cancer, Conor is bullied at school, and that he has strained relationships with his father and grandmother. After all this agony, it transpires that the monster has come to heal him.
Straight Talk about Death for Teenagers: 	Earl A. Grollman, Age 13+	This book was written after the author spoke to thousands of teenagers and found they often felt forgotten after someone has died. Written in short, clear sentences that are easy to read, it covers feelings, different types of death and the future. It gives the reader options of what can happen, how s/he may feel, giving advice and reassuring readers grief is normal.
The Fault in our stars 	By John Green, Age 14+	A moving and funny book about a young teenage girl, Hazel, who has been diagnosed with lung cancer and attends a cancer support group where she meets Augustus.
